rate the Emancipation With General ng, and an Address to be Delivered Pa Promisons Colored Orator—A Reed for the Serough Opera House,

Regular Correspondence of INTELLIGENCER.

COLUMNIA, Oct. 15.—The colored popula on of Columbia will have a big time on hursday, October 21st, when a grand mancipation jubilee will be held under the suspices of the Mt. Zion A. M. E. church. The carrying out of the affair has been placed in the hands of committees, who are making necessary arrangements to make the jubilee a success. Issiah C. Weirs, of Philadelphia, the colebrated colored orator, has been invited to be present to deliver an address and it is expected that he will respond. A street parade will take place in the afternoon, at two o'clock, which will be headed by the colored band, of Lancaster. The base ball grounds will be occupied by the holding of an ox roast. In the evening a grand cake and ring walk will take place in the ar mory.

A fair-stad audience was present in the armory, last night, when a meeting was held toes of the Mt. Zion A. M. E. church armory, last night, when a meeting was held ander the direction of the Prohibition party under the direction of the Frontition party of town. Addresses were delivered by Rev. J. Wright, of Philadelphia, and George N. Leievre, of Lancaster, county chairman of the Prohibition party. The speakers made very good addresses in support of their views.

A Dangerous Practice.

A Dangerous Practice.

The teacher and pupils of room No. 18, in the Cherry street school building, were very much frightened yesterday afternoon by much frightened yesterday afternoon by hearing the report of a gun, followed by the rattling of shots against the windows. Some person in the neighborhood had shot off a gun, not being careful in which direction the weapon was aimed. The shooting of firearms in the borough is a dangerous practice and is prohibited by a borough ordinance with a heavy fine attached. Luckily no accident resulted from the firing of the gun yesterday.

The Lecture Course. The Lecture Course,

It is hoped that the gentlemen composing the Ministerial association of Columbia will be successful in their efforts to provide a course of lectures to be given at the opera house during the coming winter. The opera house is a public building belonging to the borough, but still there are a large class of the people who never enter its doors for the reason that they do not patronize the class of entertainments that always occupy the building. Some years ago a lecture or so was given in the opera house, but it proved a dismal failure. If the matter is properly arranged the course of lectures can be made a

Henry George's Tutor. " Henry George is really," says The Sacramento (Cal.) Bee, a protege and a disciple of James McClatchy, the late veteran editor of The Bee. At the feet of the editor George drank in those idea which are so graphically explained in Progress and Poverty.' In fact, it was James McClatchy who prevailed upon George to write that wonderful work. It was while George was the state inspector of gas meters, and while he had plenty of idle time upon his bands. One day he dropped into The Bee office, and he and the chieftain drifted into conversation upon their pet hobbies. At the conclusion of a more than ordinarily long explanation of a knotty problem by the editor, Henry George exclaimed, admiringly: 'Mc, why don't you write a book on these subjects? By heavens it would mark a revelation and a revolution in literature.' To which James McClatchy, half-sadly, answered: 'No George, I am getting too old. I can't work as I used to. Were I twenty years younger I would go at it with a vim, but it takes all my strength now to work as I have to work on The Bec. But you are comparatively young, you are vigorous, strong, nervy, and full of life. Besides, you know, George, you have mighty little work tion upon their pet hobbies. At the conclustrong, nervy, and full of life. Besides, you know, George, you have mighty little work to do. Now, why don't you take up these reform ideas and weave them into a book? There is no man living can do it better than you can'. To this George dissented most vigorously, saying that there was no man anywhere so well fitted for the task as James McClatchy. At last, however, George was prevailed upon to begin the great work, and he did it modestly and with a lack of confidence in his own ability. Diligently and ne did it modestly and with a lack of confi-dence in his own ability. Diligently and laboriously he worked at his task, frequent were the consultations between himself and the The Bee editor, and, chapter by chapter, the work was submitted to James Mc-Ciatchy for his careful consideration and judgment."

Stealing Democratic Thunder, From the Harrisburg Patriot. The recklessness of Republican politicians is disclosed in the fact that in Iowa the papers of that party are using the letter of papers of that party are using the letter of Governor Pattison on the coal combination to make political capital. Presuming on the ignorance of their readers, they present Governor Pattison as a Republican and point to his letter as testimony of the advanced position of the party on the subject of anti-monopoly. The Davenport Gazette of a recent date, after an elaborate article on the subject, concludes by pronouncing the young Democratic executive as the "noblest Reman of them all in the Republican party."

A Cake That Will be Recognized. From Tid isits.
"What kind of cake do you call that?"

asked a young husband at the tea-table. "Sponge cake, my darling, and I made it myself," replied his wife, "Sponge cake, is it?" "Yes; what kind of cake did you think it
